

HVAC Technician

$38,238 - $78,370

MAKE A MORE COMFORTABLE LIFE FOR YOURSELF AND OTHERS.

If you're good with your hands, love solving problems, and want a career that's always in demand, becoming a Heating, Ventilation, and Air Conditioning (HVAC) technician might be your perfect fit. From icy winters to humid summers, HVAC pros keep homes and businesses comfortable year-round.

In Nebraska, HVAC job opportunities are expected to grow 13% by 2032.

The median salary for an HVAC technician in Nebraska is $59,690 per year. This number can increase based on specialized roles or experience.

Pathway Into HVAC

- Highschool diploma or GED
- Apprenticeship opportunities exist with hands-on training with pay like the Standard Heating and Air apprenticeship program
- Trade schools and community colleges offer programs that typically take 6 month to 2 years.

Training Programs

- Central Community Collage \(Grand Island\)
- Metropolitan Community College \(Omaha\)
- Northeast Community College \(Norfolk\)
- Southeast Community College \(Lincoln\)
- Standard Heating and Air Apprenticeship Program \(various\)

Possible Employers

Nebraska's HVAC market is thriving with opportunities across residential, commercial, industrial, and institutional sectors. Companies hiring include residential HVAC companies, commercial HVAC firms, industrial and infrastructure companies, and retail and corporate facilities. Check job posting sites often for current openings!